

Dr. Kelly McCormick attended undergraduate school in her home state of Georgia, where she received her bachelor's degree, in nutritional science from the University of Georgia in Athens. Dr. McCormick then traveled to Mobile, AL, where she earned her Doctor of Medicine degree from the University of South Alabama College of Medicine. As Chief Resident, Dr. McCormick completed her diagnostic radiology residency at Brookwood Baptist Health in Birmingham, then finalized her training with a fellowship in neuroradiology at the Barrow Neurological Institute in Phoenix, AZ.

Dr. McCormick's professional interests include image-guided diagnostic and therapeutic neuroradiology procedures, and the utilization of stroke and cerebrovascular imaging in the diagnosis of aneurysms, vascular malformation, and cerebro-occlusive diseases.

Dr. McCormick is excited to explore all of Colorado's outdoor activities including running, alpine skiing, and hiking with her partner, Lauren, and their 8-year-old Blue Heeler mix, Nikki.
