

Dr. Matthew Hille began his academic path with a bachelor's degree from the University of Wisconsin in Madison and went on to earn his Doctor of Osteopathic Medicine degree at the Arizona College of Osteopathic Medicine in Glendale.

Dr. Hille's medical training brought him back to the Midwest, where he completed his diagnostic radiology & nuclear medicine residency at Rush University Medical Center in Chicago. He then specialized further with a musculoskeletal imaging fellowship at the University of Chicago - Northshore.

On a personal note, Dr. Hille and his wife celebrated the arrival of their son, Henry, in May this year. When not immersed in his professional work, Dr. Hille enjoys traveling, cooking, and hiking with his family. An avid soccer player and dedicated Wisconsin sports fan, he passionately supports the Green Bay Packers.

Dr. Hille's professional interests lie in musculoskeletal radiology, particularly in the realm of sports imaging and medicine.
